Next Meeting

Tom Nehl

The March meeting of the Corridor Woodturners will be Thursday, March 11 at 6:30 pm. Ray Hamilton will be giving a presentation on the golden mean.

This presentation includes history, art, architecture, involvement in nature, application for woodworking, and the relationship and basis with one of the most amazing, top mathematical topics of all times.

The meeting will start with an introduction by Tom Nehl, then transition to Ray's presentation.

This meeting will be over Zoom only; there is no in-person meeting. The Zoom meeting info is below.

During the Zoom meeting, participants will be muted, but someone will be monitoring the chat window, and relay any questions to Ray.

From the President

Greetings fellow turners,

Finally some warm weather. For me, I am really looking forward to outdoor activities. I need to make a push on some woodworking projects and get them finished up so I am ready to get started on all the outside work we need to do around here. Lots of yard work left over from the derecho.

Made a trip to Johnson wood products today to pick up some platter blanks for Stacy. She is teaching a carving on turnings and pyrography class at the Doane Experience, a five day carving extravaganza in Nebraska this summer. The platters are for the pyro class the vases are already turned for the carving class.

This month's meeting will be a Zoom only meeting. Ray Hamilton will be doing a presentation on the Golden Mean. I have some knowledge of it but am always interested in increasing my knowledge when it comes to design. Thank You Ray.

The board will continue to monitor the situation as far as social distancing and having in person meetings. Perhaps we can start with outside meetings in our driveway soon.

We continue to look for new board members, anyone interested please contact a board member.

As a zoom etiquette please remember to keep yourself muted during the demo as any sound you make will override the presenter.

Stay safe,

Tom Nehl
